AYYAS ISHAKI

A leader among the Tartar emigrants in Turkey, Finland, Poland, Japan, and Manchukuo; 63 years old; well-known as journalist, author, and dramatist; one of the leaders of the group which at the end of the last war stood for the creation of a state of the Volga-Tartars (Idil-Ural) within a larger union of all Turks in Russia; since 1923 has been fighting against Russia; from 1928 to 1939 published in Berlin the periodical Milli Yol; his enemies among the Turks attribute to his "crazy" idealistic claim to Panturkism the fact that a favorable opportunity was missed in the fight against Russia; during the recent festival of emigrants from Turkestan in Istanbul, ^(Ev. Perry, Tartar Club) distributed a book which he had previously published in Berlin, and which is said to represent Tartar interests only, not Turkish interests in general; the organization he created in Manchukuo before the war still exists today with its own periodical Milli Bayrak.

JAGOW von

German Ambassador in Budapest / according to neutral sources having contact with the German Embassy in Budapest, in the near future, von Jagow will make a trip to Berlin, accompanied by the German Consul in Kolosvar, DARNARAU / in Geneva the journey is attributed to fears of the Germans regarding the growing enmity to Germany in Hungary and regarding the growth of...tendencies in Hungarian Government circles / it is regarded as characteristic that Jagow was called to Berlin soon after HORTHY's declaration in the Bulgarian paper, DMes, and after his son's speech to Hungarians in Brazil [cf.
